Email from a PCGS subscriber:

"...took my old friends last Wednesday to explore their great-grandparents' farms. What a great afternoon we had! The weather was wonderful and we tied lots of family memories together. went to see an old aunt's house, as they remembered it from former visits. The two sisters and their daughters were along, so now the kids can retrace our steps and learn more on their own. Genealogy is soooo contagious!..."

(This is what it is all about-passing it forward especially to the young.

Bread Pudding

Nothing went to waste during The Great Depression, not even stale bread. Everything was reused and stretched into another meal. You could make croutons from your stale bread, or you could make some delicious bread pudding! This is an Amish recipe recently found on Moms Who Think Ingredients:

> 2 cups whole milk (or 2 cups of half & half) 1/4 cup butter,

3 eggs and 2/3 cup sugar (white or brown) 2 teaspoons cinnamon and 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg l teaspoon vanilla extract

3 cups bread, torn into small pieces and 1/2 cup raisins Directions:

In a medium saucepan, heat milk just until film forms over top. Combine butter with the milk, stirring until butter is melted. Cool to lukewarm. Combine eggs, sugar, cinnamon, nutmeg and vanilla, beat and slowly add to milk mixture. Place bread in a lightly greased 1 and 1/2 quart casserole dish, sprinkle with raisins and pour batter on top of bread.

Bake at 350 degrees for 45-50 minutes or until set. Serve warm with sweet white sauce recipe on page 5.

IRELAND - Census Substitute Records for Co.Derry The Irish Family History Foundation's Online Research Service (ORS) are pleased to announce the availability of 90,866 new census substitute records from the Derry ~ Londonderry Genealogy Centre for Co. Derry.

This database contains an index to people recorded in seven such sources, dating from 1663 to 1837. These sources name heads of household only; each source returns the name of head of household, year, civil parish address, and, in most cases, townland (or street/town) address. The Flax Growers Lists of 1796 plus some of the 1740 and 1766 returns don't record townland addresses. The seven sources are:

- Hearth Money Rolls of 1663
- Protestant Householders Lists of 1740
- Religious Census of 1766 Returns survive for 10 civil parishes in County Derry, namely: Artrea, Ballynascreen, Banagher, Bovevagh, Derryloran, Desertlyn, Desertmartin, Drumachose, Dungiven and Magherafelt.
- Flax Growers Lists of 1796
- Private Census of 1803 for the civil parish of
- Early-19th century Tithe Books. Year of compilation, ranging from 1822 to 1837, vary from parish to parish. The Tithe Book for the Deanery of Derry, which includes the parishes of Burt, Inch, Muff and Templemore, doesn't record a year of compilation.
- 1831 Census. An abstract of the 1831 census returns survive which names all heads of households, 40,000 in total, in County Derry.

By logging directly into the Derry Centre site you can choose a 'Source' from the search screen to narrow your search. Just go to the following site and login using your existing IFHF login details. http://derry.rootsireland.ie

Turning your hobby into cash

A story about a man who actually made money doing genealogy for others!

http://www.nextavenue.org/blog/career-shiftturn-your-hobby-new-job

After his employer went bankrupt, Thomas MacEntee transformed his fondness for genealogy into an incomegenerating profession. He didn't actually do genealogy--instead he talked, blogged, twittered, and wrote about doing it.

"Today, MacEntee breaks down his income this way: about 50 percent from consulting with companies that want to break into the genealogy market; 30 percent from speaking engagements, ranging from one-hour webinars to weeklong genealogical themed cruises; and 20 percent from freelance writing assignments for genealogy magazines and websites".

Why Probate?

What: Court procedure by which a will is proven to be valid or invalid; through in current usage this term has been expanded to generally include all matters and proceedings pertaining to administration of estates, quardianships, etc. Black's Law Dictionary by Henry Campbell Black 5th ed, 1979, West Publishing, Co.

Why: The procedure has been around for a long time: "Probate Courts were established in Minnesota counties shortly after the organization of each county." Using Minnesota Probate Court Records, MN Historical Society Pamphlet Why: Probate records are public records Where: Wherever a person had real property when he/she died.

When: After the death of a person holding real and personal property.

The documents with the most pertinent information include:

-Petition to begin proceedings -Will, if there is one

-Inventory and Appraisal (of the Estate) -Land Records

-Final Distribution -Special Testimony

(History of small Polk County villages and hamlets that are now ghost towns.)

Bush

Bush was a short lived post office run by Henry Harison Bush. He lived at the junction of Cowan Creek and Sterling Township in West Sterling. A church was started in 1873 of which [only] the cemetery remains. The Sterling town hall was built there in 1877? The whole of West Sterling rose in the 1860s and died by the 19teens with a brief spurt again during The [Great] Depression. The land was poor, sandy and many people depended on work with the logging crews [further north] to make a living. When logging came to an end, some acres [were still] available for farming if you were willing to clear cut the remaining timber.
