Introduction

Robert H. Wilson was born in Ireland in 1822 and emigrated to the U.S. in 1840. He was accompanied by at least two younger brothers, William and Andrew, all of whom were naturalized on the same day in 1854 in Waupaca.

The naturalization papers claim the family emigrated in 1849. Whether the date is an error or a deliberate fabrication is unknown.

They lived in New York State (Steuben County) where Robert enlisted in the 2nd U.S. Dragoons in 1846 at the outbreak of the War with Mexico. Robert enlisted for five years, serving through the entire Mexican War under Gen. Zachary Taylor and then was sent to the New Mexico territory to police the area from Apache Indians (and, no doubt, any Mexican holdovers).

The dragoons were essentially a mobile infantry force and only two regiments existed. They were the predecessors of today's First and Second Stryker Brigades. According to the unit history, they were present at most of the major engagements in the Mexican War.

One officer he served under was Lt. Henry Sibley, who later became a Confederate general during the Civil War. Sibley was also known for his development of the Sibley tent and Sibley stove. A roster of the dragoons during that time period reveals a number of officers who later gained fame in the Civil War, including Richard Ewell, the Confederate General who played a key role in the battle of Gettysburg.

After his enlistment expired in 1851 Robert came to the Town of Springwater. Why is anyone's guess. It would appear his brothers had already settled in the area, according to land transactions. Also Waushara County was just created and its land, recently taken from the Indians, was open for settlement.

In 1859 Robert met and married Sarah Wade who settled in the Mt. Morris area with her family after moving from Jericho, Vermont in 1856. She was 19 and he was 35. Over the course of 20 years, they had eight children, seven girls and one boy. Two girls died at a very young age. Mary died at the age of 3. Another daughter, Jane, their first born, apparently died in infancy. She is listed on the 1860 census report and no records exist after that. Another daughter, Lizzie, died of tuberculosis at the age of 22 in 1895—just a year after Sarah died and one year before the death of Robert. The four surviving daughters Lucinda (Hanford), Clara Woolsy, or Woolsly or Woolsey), Sarah (Terrill), Mary (yes, another Mary) (Leach) all settled in the Plainfield area. Robert E. (Elmer) was the youngest, born in 1880.

Shortly after they were married the Wilsons moved to Crystal Lake in the Town of Dayton, Waupaca County where they lived until around 1864 when Robert enlisted in the 1st Wisconsin Cavalry.

Although Robert was subject to the Civil War draft, he chose to enlist (at the age of 41) perhaps feeling comfortable in the cavalry, and served from January 1864 to the end of the war. He served in the western arena of the war, Tennessee, Alabama and Georgia. There is little in the record of engagements in which he was involved except for an injury he reported in a clash in Tennessee with Confederate cavalry under the command of Nathan Bedford Forrest. Robert claimed, in his later application for a pension, his horse reared and fell on him.

Robert returned to his family in the Town of Springwater and here the story travels on two different tracks.

Because of his service in the Mexican War, Robert qualified for a pension in 1887. All that was required was some proof that the applicant be disabled and unable to work, not necessarily service-related. He also applied for, and was approved, for a Civil War veteran's pension. However, the applicant had to show his disability was service-related and as you will see from the extensive correspondence, Robert claimed he was disabled as a result of an illness during the war which led to his deafness and other long-lasting ill effects from the fall under the horse.

As you will also see, from reading the documents, Robert claimed he was in dire poverty, and, at one point, responded to a letter by writing on the back of the envelope "because he could not afford to buy paper."

Then the authorities discovered Robert was "double-dipping", receiving two soldier's pensions, which was not allowed. He was billed for the overpayments and he again pleaded poverty. He was docked $4 a month from his $8 pension until the debt was paid off.

But Robert may not have been as poor as he let on.

It appears Robert and Sarah made a living off of numerous land transactions. Because of Robert's service in the Mexican War he qualified for a bounty land warrant. In the early days of the Republic, dating back to the Revolutionary War, soldiers were promised land grants for their service in lieu of the low pay. I came across many land transactions in the Waushara County Register of Deeds office involving Robert, Sarah and the Wilson brothers.

In 1865 Robert received a Mexican War bounty warrant for 160 acres of land. I am unable to discern from the documents how or when or where the warrant was redeemed. In 1859 Robert received a 40-acre parcel through some of kind of land grant (the document is in the packet). You will also see the abstract for Wilson Lake. The family dredged a cranberry bog, called it Wilson Lake and sold off the parcels.

According to the burial record Robert died at the age of 73 from a cancer on the face, (or he died of cancer of the stomach if his obituary is accurate) and Waushara County footed the bill for $35 to cover the cost of embalming and the casket. Robert spent the last couple years of his life living with the daughters in the Plainfield area. Elmer, my grandfather, was only 15 at the time.

It is my hope others may be able to glean more information from the public documents I located. Also, I hope others can shed light on the other branches of the family, the descendants of Andrew and William and the daughters of Robert and Sarah.

You will notice many discrepancies in dates and names throughout the documents. Because all correspondence was conducted in handwriting, mistakes were common. Also, the quality of the documents vary. Some are copies of copies. Others, such as the National Archive documents, are copies made from microfilm. The only original document in my possession is the VA burial voucher.

Feel free to distribute this file as widely as possible.

Peaceful be thy silent slumber,
Peaceful in the grave so low,
Thou no more will join our number
Thou no more our sorrows know,
Yet again we hope to meet thee,
When the day of life is fled,
And in heaven with joy to greet thee,

WILLIS, OSCAR F., private, was born in 1817 in New York State, and enlisted on October 28,1861, in Company K, First Wisconsin Cavalry. He was transferred to Company I, March 1,1862, and was killed in action on August 3, 1862, at L'Aiguille Ferry, Arkansas.

WILSON, ROBERT H., private, was born in England, on October 3, 1822, but came to the United States and settled in New York State, probably in Oneida County. After fighting in the war with Mexico, both as a volunteer and in the regulars, he saw service in New Mexico against the Apache Indians and in July, 1851, was mustered out of Troop H. Second Regiment, United States Dragoons. Soon after, he settled in Berlin where he worked as a butcher and a farmer. He entered Union service on January 18, 1864, as private of Company K, First Wisconsin Cavalry and spent the rest of the war in Tennessee, Kentucky, Georgia, and Alabama. Because of Illness he was not with the unit at Verneil's

⁹"Dragoons as originally organized were intended to act as cavalry or infantry skirmishers, a hybrid corps to do duty afoot or on horseback as circumstances required. At that time, the dragoons were armed with a musketoon, carried on a sling belt when mounted, a Prussian sabre, and a horse pistol. Later they were armed with revolvers. The sabre was a nuisance when the troops were operating, as they usually were, against Indians; and much time was spent devising some means to stop the noise and jingle incident to its use. The jackets of the dragoons were trimmed with orange and there was an orange stripe on the trousers," See Hamlin, Old Bald Head, 12.

He was mustered out of service on July 19, 1865, at Eddsfield, Tennessee, and returned to Wisconsin where he farmed in the Town of Saxeville, Waushara County, until his death, on April 13, 1896. WINTER, HENRY A., private, was born on November 9, 1843, in Niles, Cayuga County, New York. He received his elementary education in his native county and at Cortland Academy before entering high school at Berlin, in the spring of 1861. In October of the same year he withdrew from school to enlist as a private in Company B, Eleventh Wisconsin Infantry Regiment. The following year while serving with the unit in Arkansas, he became ill with typhoid fever and was discharged. He returned to New York and while recuperating, visited Wisconsin and Michigan before traveling to Indianapolis where, in May, 1863, he re-enlisted in Company B, Seventy-second Indiana Infantry. Winter joined the unit at Murfreesboro, Tennessee, saw action at Hovers Gap and Chickamaugua, and was wounded in the Atlanta campaign. His regiment assisted in the capture of Jefferson Davis, and afterward, at Lamar House, Macon, Georgia, he talked personally with the Confederate chief. Later he was transferred to Company B, Forty-fourth Indiana Infantry, and was mustered out on September 14, 1865, at Nashville,

Last Thursday President Cleveland signed the tardy relief bill for the veterans of the Mexican war. We trust this is but the entering wedge for the relief these veterans are justly entitled to. The bill, as it passed, was accepted as a compromise, with the hope that the incoming Congress will do full justice to the few remaining veterans of the war which secured to us so rich a heritage. To A. M. Kenaday, editor of The Vedette (Washington, D. C.), is due the largest share of credit for the achievement of what has been done, and to him his brother veterans will still look until full and complete justice has been secured at the hands of the Government.—Alameda (Cal.) COMRADE KEMADAY.

DEAR SIR: I have lost the location of all the members of Co. C, first regiment mounted rifles, Captain Samuel H. Walker, except cur dear old comrade Jieutenant Thomas Claiborne, of Nashville, Tenn. I would like to know the address of the following comrades: Richard Bradford, Silas Conn, Samuel Fisher, John F. Lynch, Nicholas Burke, Washington Myers, D. M. Lowe, Thomas Tiglman, Fritz Tiglman, and any other of Co. C who may see this notice; I would be pleased to have any or all of them send me their address, so that I may correspond with them. I see by the papers the House passed the Senate amendment to the pension bill in favor of the Mexican veterans. It will do me no good, as I have been on the pension list for almost forty years, but I am glad to know that my old and tried comrades are to be paid, in part, for their "picnic" in Mexico.

S'ncerely yours, C. J RICHARDSON.

From Arizona Territory.

Tuoson, Ariz., February 14, 1887.

Comrade Kenaday, Washington, D. C.

Now that our wiseacres in Congress have consented in a rather ungracious way to save from the poor-house the few remaining veterans of the Mexican war, I hope you will send me a few blanks to make out my application and that of a few of our comrades in this section. I confess that my "righteous soul has been considerably vexed" by having seen a number of blanks sent out here by curbatone claim agents to rob you of what you have so nobly earned from the old veterans, and two of them in their eagerness to make immediate application, believing that the pension would only run from receipt of application at Washington, to wit: Moore and McElliott, made theirs out on blanks of one Pawnbroker, claim agent; but I made them scratch out his name in the power of attorney and insert yours and send the paper to you, as I consider it an act of ingratinde on the part of any veteran of the Mexican war not to prefer you to anybody. By the way, I am pleased with your suggestions as to founding an educational Institution in Washington for the free education of the progeny of Mexican war veterans, and will cheerfully give the proceeds of my pension to such a laudøble enterprise, if all or a large portion of our comrades, who do not need this pittance for their support will do so, and I hope they will. You have a dogged determination in you that must succeed; so agitate the matter and keep the project stirred up. I enclose one dollar greenback to keep up my subscription to The Vedette.

Yours fraternally, Wm. S. Oury.

Dear Sir. As Secretary, and in behalf of the Mexican war veterans of Indiana, allow me to return our sincere thanks for the energy you and General Denver have displayed in getting Cougress to pass our pension bill.
Both of you are entitled to the thanks of the soldiers of the Mexican war. Although it does not cover all of us, it will make many an old heart glad. If I can be of any service to yon, p'ease call on me, and I will do all I can for you in our association. You have the roll of names I sent you ten years ago. There are a few changes of post offices that I will send you soon.

Send me a few blanks, or will those of March 17, 1884, do? If so, let me know. General Manson was in the city yesterday, but I did not see him. Yours

SIV, OHIO, February 1, 1887.

A. M. KENADAY.

HIGHLY ESTEEMED COMRADE: By to-day's paper I am informed that the President has signed the bill which gives the remnant of our boys who marched through Mexico a small pension, but which, to many of them, will be sufficient to insure them a decent burial at least. The fact of the Government (though somewhat tardily, as we thought,) recognizing least. The fact of the Government (though somewhat tardily, as we thought,) recognizing our services in that bitter conflict in the enemy's country, which brought such grand results in honor to our flag and wealth to our nation, brings a kind of halo about the whole business which makes one glad to have been a parlicipant in the picnic.

Those the yeterans everywhere will show their business which makes one glad to have been a participant in the picnic.

I hope the veterans everywhere will show their appreciation of your untiring and incalculable services for the past number of years in getting the bill through by inducing agitation of the question which has given that war a prestige and prominence that it would never have had without; it had been buried and nearly forgotten when you took hold of the matter and resurrected and gave it life. In fact, we owe everything to you and General Denver, and I am satisfied that you have made very considerable sacrifice, and my hope is that you may be able to get at least some little return out of the good fortune of those you have helped; but pension agents from every quarter are flooding the country with circulars and blanks, and I fear many will be drawn away without thinking of their obligation to you. I have written to some of my acquaintances and will write to others.

Will you please send me another blank and tell me just what is necessary to fill out?

Hoping to hear from you soon, I am, with much respect, yours,

The following appeared in a late issue of the New Orleans Picayune:

New Orleans Picayune:

Since the passage by Congress and approval by the President of a bill granting pensions to veterans of the war with Mexico, a number of parties have been writing to Hon. Jefferson Davis and to Col. D. M. Hollingsworth for information as to how they are to proceed to get their pensions in the premises. The pension granted is $8 per month. Applicants should address themselves to The Vedette, a larger published at Washington, in the interest proper published at Washington, in the interest of the Mexican veterans. The address is, "The VEDETTE, P. O. Box 37, Washington, D. C." The following is the information required:

I must also be permitted to thank you for your valuable services rendered in thus procuring the passage of the bill and its becoming a law. While not the law I would have voted for, still I consider it was best to accept it as it came from the Senate, as I have but little doubt that it can be so amended as to make it much more acceptable by the next Congress.

Hoping that you may be pecuniarily benefited by its passage, and that you may live long to enjoy it, I remain your friend and comrade till death separates us,

I feel that you are justly entitled to the benefits arising from the presentation of the claims under that bill, and therefore write to ask that you will promptly inclose to my address, as above, the necessary blanks and instructions to claimants which may facilitate the application.

From George F. Brady.

NORWALK, OHIO, February 1, 1887.

A. M. Kenaday, Esq.

Dear Comrade: I have been looking for The Vedette anxiously since the passage of that abortion called the Mexican pension bill. I am fully aware that 'tis not your fault that we have not got a genuine service pension bill which would strike out or repeal that section of the Ranged Statutes that prevents a soltion of the Revised Statutes that prevents a sol-dier of the late war who has $8 or more from getting any recognition for his Mexican service.

The enemies of our service pension bill who based all their objections to our bill for the past sixteen years on the ground that the bill would pension men who were in arms against the Government in the late war have by this bill shown that they do not appreciate us Northern fellows, who came to the front, and, with the knowledge gained in Mexico, helped very materially to drill and discipline the green volunteers. Some of us have pensions, it is true, but they were earned in the late war, and not in the Mexican. I cannot understand this sort of appreciation of our service in two wars. Well, it will give some poor comrades a pension who would not otherwise get one, and that is some consolation. But now, comrade, we must start in for another campaign, the principal objective point of which must be to make this bill, by amendment, a real service pension, and have that clause of the Revised Statutes suspended in our case. I am one of the veterans of the two wars; besides; as some folks say, I was a soldier in peace out in Texas when that country was full of Commanches and other hostile Indians. Well, what queer Congressmen we have! They have at the same time passed a bill to give the hundred-day men of the last war $12 per month, no matter whether the disability for which they are to be pensioned was incurred in the line of duty or not. Queer sort of justice, indead!

I guess, comrade, your old Charger may need some oats, so I herewith send you an order for dos pesos, which please credit to me

I guess, comrade, your old Charger may need some oats, so I herewith send you an order for dos pesos, which please credit to me on my account, and I will say adios.

General George W. Morgan, of Ohio.

The following paragraph is clipped from the Mount Vernon (Ohio) Banner, of February

So far as known the following is a complete list of the Mexican war veterans, resident of Knox county, who are entitled to pensions of $8 per month, under the recent act of Congress, which has received the President's signature and is now a law: General Geo. W. Morgan, Captain James E. Harle, Samuel Clark, Mt. Vernon; George Wolford, Monroe township; Jesse Headington, Liberty townthip; John Cochran, Harrison township; and George Wagner, of Fredericktown.

General Morgan recommends A. M. Kenaday, editor of THE VEDETTE, Washington City, as a proper person to secure pensions for the Mexican veterans.

PRODUCED AT THE NATIONAL ARCHIVE

I have the honor to request that if possible, you will furnish me with some information, relative to the case of Robt. H. Wilson late of Co.K. 1st. Wis. Cavy.

Tenn. in March 1864, and remained there for about six weeks, that he was then sent to Camp Smith near Nashville, Tenn. with about forty. five other members of the first Wis. Williamson, of the 31st. Wis. Inf. that on the second of Sept. 1864-they fought Wheelers Cavy. two miles from Franklin, Tenn. that on the fifth day of Sept. 1864, they were in battle at Campbellville, Tenn. and were commanded by Lt. Baker and Capt. Jones of the 1st. Wis. Cavy. that on Sept. 26-and 27th. they were in an engagement at Pulaski, Tenn. with Forrest's Cavy. that they were then commanded by Capt. Comstock and Martin of the 1st. Wis. Cavy. and at this engagement, he received an injury to his back by reason of his horse falling on him, and that he was treated therefor at Hos. The claimant has filed in his Pension claim the testimony of Daniel Smith, of Co.M. 1st. Wis. Cavy. R. N. Loomis and of Benj. Darling, of Co K. 1st. Wis. Cavy. but the Pension Office refuses to accept the testimony of these witnesses or to credit the claimant's statement for the reason that, the records of the Adj. General's Office show that not only this claimant but also his witnesses were in Nashville Tenn. during ahe month of Sept. 1864, and that the 1st. Wis. Cavy. were in Coatsville, Tann. Geo. during said month.

Cannot some record be found in your Office, showing the detail of this soldier and his comrades above named, to Camp Smith, Tenn. and is the order detailing such soldiers office?

Also please inform me, to what Department the men stationed at Camp Smith, Tenn. reported for the months of Aug. and Sept. 1864.

Please return this letter with your reply.

Ctfs.Mex.War 6,896, & Inv.360,587, of

Robert H. Wilson, Late Pvt.Co."H" 2 Drag.Mex.War & Pvt.Co."K" 1 Wis.Vol.Cav., late War.

Respectfully referred to the Chief of the Board of Review, for consideration and dropping from roll, on Mexican pension, on ground that pensioner is in receipt of two pensions. Pensioner has elected to retain the Inv.Ctf. (see rep.Sp.Ex.Waring herewith), and has surrendered Mexican War Ctf.6,896. He has been overpaid the sum of $184.66, but is unable to refund same, on account of his great poverty.

As soon as action of dropping is completed, the papers should be referred to the Chief of the Finance Division, to the end that such instructions as may be proper may be sent to the proper U.S.Pension Agent, to continue suspension on Inv.Ctf.until enough shall have accrued to recoup the $184.66 over-payment above indicated.

The Sp'l Examiner recommends an early reconsideration of his Invalid claim, on the ground that the evidence filed therein justifies a higher rate of pension than the $4.00 per month which was granted to him for disease of chest and intercostal neuralgia.

It is suggested that action be taken in this matter at as early a date as practicable.

M. Division.

OFFICE OF CHARLES E. FAIRMAN, PENSION AND PATENT ATTORNEY,

Room 35 Gunton Building,

Washington, D.C., Sept. 14th., 1886.

Hon. L. Q. C. Lamar, Secretary of the Interior;

Sir:-

I have the honor to appeal from the decision of the Commissioner of Pensions in the claim for Invalid Pension (No. 204,827) of Robert H. Wilson, late private of Co, "K", Ist. Wisconsin Cavalry; and to request that the facts in the same, as shown by the competent evidence filed, receive your careful attention.

After having been recently special examined, this claim was rejected on the 2nd. day of Sept., I886, that portion which was based on injury to spine and back being rejected because the records show that the claimant was absent sick at Nashville, and not at Pulaski, Tenn, where he alleges that his injury was incurred. The claimant has submitted evidence which shows conclusively that although he was in hospital at Nashville some months previous to the time he received his injury, he was duly dicharged therefrom, and, instead of rejoining his regiment, he was detailed to go on an expidition against Forrest's cavalry, and while on the said expedition, received the injuries for which he claims pension.

OFFICE OF CHARLES E. FAIRMAN, NSION AND PATENT ATTORNEY,

Room 35 Gunton Building. WASHINGTON, D.C., Page 2nd.

It seems to me to be entirely unjust, and a misinterpretation of the meaning of the Pension laws, to refuse this claimant a Pension merely because he is so unfortunate as to be the victim of an erroneous record, especially when his statements are corroborated by credible comrades whose credibility cannot be disputed.

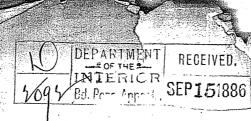

The remaining portion of this claim (based upon disease of kideneys and chest) was rejected upon the same date, because a recent examination failed to show that the claimant was disabled thereby.

Medical evidence on file in this case shows that the claimant suffered from these disabilities immediately after his discharge from the service and continuously since, and thus corroborate the statements of the claimant that they existed in the service, and the fact that a recent examination fails to show disability in a pensionable degree, it is not conclusive proof that such disability has never existed, and the evidence submitted in this case—shows plainty and incontrovertibly that the disabilities existed at the time of the sold dier's discharge, and exist at the present time.

hequesting your careful attention and favorable consideration of this claim, Iremain,

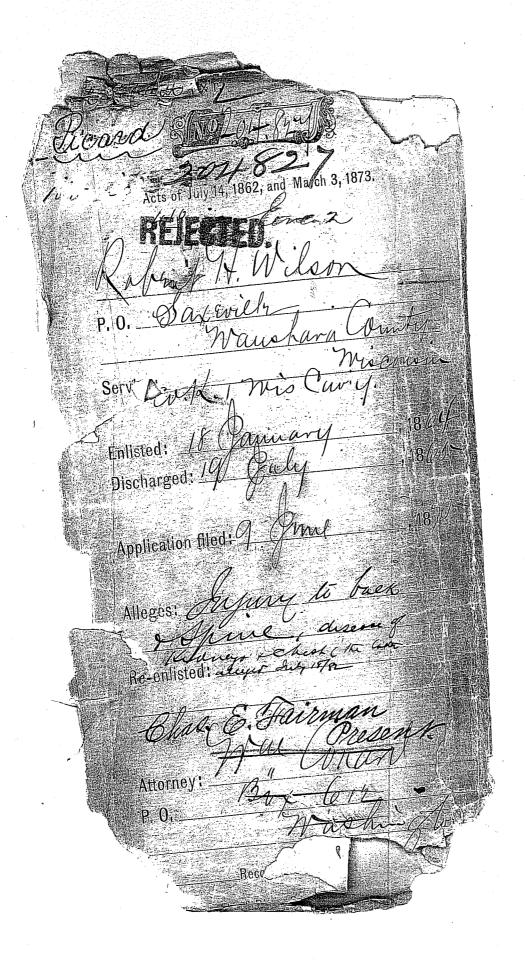

Your obedient servant,

Couldrinan.

Arriving at St. Louis, on the 19th of March, 1862, they were quartered at Benton Barracks. Here they completed their outfit, and on the 28th of April, the regiment moved down the Mississippi on transports to Cape Girardeau, Mo.

The Regimental Adjutant, Charles W. Burbanks, was mustered out on the 25th of March, and Lieutenant S. V. Shipman, acted as Adjutant.

Colonel Daniels was placed in command of the post, and assigned to the district of Southeast Missouri. On the 10th of May, a force of six squadrons proceeded to Bloomfield, fifty miles from Cape Girardeau, and took possession of the place. Major Pomerov was placed in command of the post and was appointed Provost Marshal. From this time until the regiment left Southeast Missouri, they were engaged in scouting in various directions, repeatedly encountering the enemy. Ten miles south of Bloomfield, a rebel camp was broken up, and a few days after the rebel Colonel Phelan, and about 100 of his followers were captured. An expedition was made to Chalk Bluffs, on the St. Francis River. On the 14th of May, the river was crossed and the enemy's camp was found two or three miles beyond, and a skirmish occurred in which the regiment lost three killed, and four wounded, among them Lieutenant William J. Philips, of Company A, who was mortally wounded.

The casualties as reported, were:

KILLED OR DIED OF WOUNDS.—Company A—Lieutenant William J. Philips and Private William McClaughrey. Company D—Private Solomon Howard—3, WOUNDED.—Company A—Privates Charles Ence and Thomas Tafe. Company C—Private J. O. Tuttle. Company D—Lieutenant F. C. Mccrill—4.

On the 21st of of May, a detachment under the command of Colonel Daniels, proceeded to Kennett, in Dunklin County, where they learned that a steamer loaded with supplies was lying in Little River, at Hornersville, ten or twelve miles distant. Colonel Daniels pushed forward and succeeded in capturing the boat with about fifty prisoners, and a valuable cargo of sugar, molasses and other stores. On the 1st of June, Dr. H. N. Gregory was killed by a shot from a rebel sharpshooter at Chalk Bluff.

Not content with confining his operations to the district to which he was assigned, Colonel Daniels took the responsibility of making a raid into Arkansas. The regiment was concentrated at West Prairie, about thirty miles south of Bloomfield. About sixty men were left at Cape Girardeau, under command of Lieutenant Shipman, who had been appointed commandant of the post by order of the Department commander. About fifty men were left at Bloomfield, under the command of Captain Hyde. A few men also remained to guard the stores left at camp on West Prairie.

On the 12th of June, Major La Grange was commissioned Lieutenant Colonel, and Captain Henry S. Eggleston, Major.

The regiment left West Prairie on the 9th of July, with three pieces of artillery, and reached Chalk Bluff that evening, crossed the river and encamped. While crossing, one of the boats sunk with the cannon, and one man lost his life, Private Streeter, of Company C. The cannon was recovered next day.

The route pursued by the regiment was along Crawley's Ridge, a remarkable geographical feature of the country, having its northern termination in the hilly region Northwest of Cape Girardeau, and running in a southerly direction, inclining a little easterly between the St. Francis and White rivers, for about 250 miles, and terminating in a bluff at Helena, Ark.

From Chalk Bluff, on the 10th, Captain Harnden, of Company L, was sent in advance with about one hundred men, and reached Oak Bluff, or Scatterville, about daylight of the 11th, and surprised a force of 125 rebels, killing eight, and capturing fourteen prisoners, with a large number of rifles, and several horses and mules. The march was continued by way of Scatterville, Gainesville, Greensboro, Jonesboro, Harrisburg and Wittsburg, to Madison, without meeting the rebels in any considerable force. On the 16th, the regiment reached Jonesboro, when Captain Harnden was detached with thirty men to Cache River bridge and captured ten men and a Lieutenant Colonel, Inspector General of the rebel forces in that part of Arkansas. The regiment reached Madison on the 22d, and captured the steamer Carl with several prisoners.

From Madison, Colonel Daniels proceeded to Memphis over land, where he found orders from the Department commander at St. Louis, inquiring by what authority he had left the post and district assigned him, and ordering the immediate return of the regiment. Colonel Daniels returned to Madison, and on the 28th, took passage in the steamer Carl, for Helena, and never rejoined the regiment. The First and Second Battalions, marched to La Anguille Ferry on the 28th, and reached Marianne, eight miles beyond, on the 29th. A heavy train of baggage wagons, escorted by the Second Battalion, under Major Eggleston, had moved several miles in the rear during the march. The train left Wittsburg on the 2d of August, marching to La Anguille Ferry, and camping on the north shore of the stream, where, on the morning of the 3d of August, they were surprised about daylight, by an overpowering force of the enemy, and but little resistance could be made. The Chaplain of the regiment, Rev. George W. Dunmore, was killed while dressing himself.

The list of killed, and those who died of wounds, we take from the Adjutant General's record.

Killed or Dird of Wounds.—Staff Officer—Chaplain George W. Dunmore. Company B—Sergeant William P. Ware, Corporals M. J. Bushnell, F. W. Hazard and E. F. Mead, Privates Bradley Brown and Samuel Banker. Company E—Private William F. Mills. Company F—Private Edward Ochmer. Company I—Privates O. F. Willis and Adrian Horton. Company K—Private Philander Truesdell. Company L—Privates Nicholas Friddle and Carey C. Webb. Company M—Private Enoch Young—15.

Fifty seven were taken prisoners, and also twenty men of a Union Arkansas company, six of whom were afterwards shot by the rebels at Little Rock. Nearly 100 negroes who were following the train were captured, many of whom were shot down in cold blood.

The train consisted of twenty wagons laden with supplies, three ambulances, and two wagons with ammunition, also all the regimental papers, which were all captured by the rebels. The regiment under the command of Lieutenant Colonel La Grange, moved in immediate pursuit of the enemy as far as Rough and Ready. Returning next day to Marianne, on the 5th, they marched to Helena, arrived there on the 6th, and reported to General Curtis.

When between Wittsburg and Madison, on the 29th of July, Captain Porter, of Company I, was ordered to detach twenty-two men and gather the sick who had been left on the march, and return with them to Bloomfield. When near Jonesboro, Captain Porter reports that he attacked a rebel camp, drove the enemy and took several prisoners, and other spoils. Proceeding to Jonesboro on the 2d of August, he took possession of the Court House, which in the night was surrounded by about two hundred rebels, who after a sharp fight, compelled him to surrender. They were soon paroled, and with those able to move forward, pushed through the woods to the Mississippi River at Osceola.

The casualties in this affair as reported by Captain Porter, were:

Killed or Died of Wounds.—Company I.—Privates Edward Stanley, John Somby, Frank Obermire, Benjamin Rattelle, Peter Schuck, Jeremiah White and Wm. Abells, who was murdered by the rebels next day, near Scatterville.—7.

WOUNDED,-Privates George R. Williams and Nelson Nickerson -2.

Eight of the detachment were missing, and eight were taken prisoners and paroled.

On the 10th of August, the regiment was assigned to General Vandever's brigade, and moved out and camped on the Clarendon road until the 23d of September, engaged in scouting, having several men wounded.

On the 27th of September, the First Battalion, under Lieutenant Colonel La Grange, arrived at Cape Girardeau, the Third Battalion arrived a few days after, having rescued the steamer Forest Queen from a band of guerillas at the mouth of the Obion River. The Second Battalion arrived on the 29th of September, and encamped with the rest of the regiment one mile from town. On the 3d of October, the regiment moved to Greenville, Mo., leaving 400 sick at Cape Girardeau.

On the 23d of July, the squad left at West Prairie, were attacked, and Corporal E. W. Houck, of Company B, was mortally wounded. The most of the stores at that point were safely moved to Bloomfield.

In the latter part of July, the rebels made a spirited attack on Bloomfield, which was admirably defended by the little force under Captain Hyde. We find Job Warren, of Company E, reported killed at Bloomfield, on the 1st of August. They made another attack on the 11th of September, when Captain Hyde was compelled to evacuate the town, and retire to Greenville. Abner J. Keller, of Company E, is reported killed. A force of 500 men was sent from Greenville, and the place was retaken, but was held only a short time, the whole force returning to Greenville.

Adrian Horton, of Company I, died of wounds, August 5th, 1862, and Henry Van Valen, of Company H, died of wounds, September 12th, 1862, and C. M. Skinner, of Company A, died of wounds, October 26th, 1862.

From Greenville the regiment moved to Patterson, about thirty miles from Pilot Knob, and was brigaded in General Benton's Division of the Army of Southeast Missouri. During the winter the regiment encamped at West Plains, Pilot Knob, and St Genevieve, and engaged in scouting duty, and in the spring, the regiment was nearly all concentrated at Cape Girardeau.

Colonel Daniels never returned to the regiment, and finally resigned. Lieutenant Colonel La Grange was commissioned as Colonel, and Major Pomeroy as Lieutenant Colonel, on the 5th of February, 1863. On the 11th of December, 1862, Captain Thomas H. Mars was commissioned as Major, vice Major Eggleston, deceased.

In April, General Marmaduke advanced into Southeastern Missouri, and moved forward to attack Cape Girardeau. On the 24th, Company E, under command of Captain S. V. Shipman, was stationed to guard a bridge across Whitewater River, about sixteen miles from Cape Girardeau, on the Bloomfield road. One column of Marmaduke's army numbering about 3,000 men, approached. A body of about 300 men moved above the bridge some distance, crossed the river, and took possession of the only road through the swamp in rear of Captain Shipman's position. The enemy's whole force then moved against the bridge, which Captain Shipman found it impossible to hold. He therefore attempted to retreat to Cape Girardeau under cover of the darkness. Falling into an ambuscade set by the enemy, Captain

Shipman ordered his men to cut their way through, himself and Lieutenant Ogden leading the charge. In the attempt Captain Shipman was severely wounded, having his thigh bone badly shattered by a pistol ball, and was taken prisoner, with several of his men. Lieutenant Ogden, with twenty-two men, succeeded in cutting their way through and escaped to the Cape. Captain Shipman was paroled and sent into Cape Girardeau, under a flag of truce, where by superior surgical aid, his life was saved without amputation of the limb.

The casualties as reported, were:

KILLED OR DIED OF WOUNDS.—Company E.—Privates Henry Barden, Chas. M. Durant, Warren A. Gale and S. V. Corbin — 4.

On the 25th, Marmaduke attacked Cape Girardeau with great vigor, and after a time, demanded its surrender, which General McNeill refused, and the fight was resumed. A second demand for its surrender was made, but it was again refused. In the mean time General Vandever was on the way to reinforce General McNeill, upon ascertaining which fact, Marmaduke fell back to Jackson, where he was attacked by General Vandever on the 27th, and soon began his retreat. General McNeill endeavored to reach the bridge over the Whitewater, to intercept him, but the rebel General succeeded in reaching the bridge first and destroyed the greater part of it. On the 28th, Major Torrey, with four companies of the regiment, had the bridge repaired by 11 o'clock, A. M., when McNeill's forces crossed and resumed the pursuit. The bridge over the Castor River, was also destroyed by the rebels. The stream was forded, and General McNeill advanced towards Bloomfield, where a severe skirmish ensued lasting all day. The enemy finally retreated across the St. Francis at Chalk Bluff, upon which further pursuit was abandoned, and General McNeill's forces returned to Cape Girardeau. The First Cavalry took an active part in the defence of the town and was in the advance in the pursuit, its conduct eliciting the warmest commendations from the commanding General. Sergeant Mitchell O'Neill, of Company C, and Christian Bjornson, of Company G, were reported as killed at Cape Girardeau; George P. Bates, of Company G, was killed at Castor River, and Corporal William Fenton, of Company H, at Bloomfield.

In the Spring of 1863, General Rosecrans was authorized to increase his cavalry force, and sent an order to the First Wisconsin Cavalry to report to him at Nashville. The regiment accordingly embarked on the 1st of May, at Cape Girardeau, and proceeded to join the Department of the Cumberland, reaching Eddyville, Ky., on the 4th, where they disembarked and marched to Clarksville, crossed the Cumberland River, and moved thence by way of Nashville to Triune, Tenn., where they were assigned to the Second Brigade, First Division, Cavalry wing of the Army of the Cumberland. The regiment was employed in picket duty till June 15th, when the cavalry advanced, and on the 19th, had a skirmish at Middletown. The regiment accompanied the cavalry column which captured Shelbyville and a large number of prisoners. After the evacuation of Tullahoma by General Bragg, the regiment moved with Major General Stanley's cavalry column to Huntsville, Ala., where they remained, with the exception of a short time at Fayetteville, until the 15th of August, at which time they moved to Larkinsville, Ala., and camped.

Accompanying the movements of McCook's Twentieth Corps, to which Stanley's cavalry division was attached, the First Cavalry left Larkinsville on the 31st of August, and reached Stevenson on the 2d of September, crossed the Tennessee River, ascended Sand Mountain, and took the advance in McCook's movement down Wills' Valley, to intercept the retreat of Bragg, from whence the whole corps was recalled by General Rosecrans and ordered to concentrate on Chicamauga Creek. On the 19th the regiment had an engagement with the rebel cavalry, about four miles south of Crawfish Springs, compelling the enemy to fall back across Chichamauga Creek, while a flank movement by a portion of the regiment compelled them to retire still further, by which the safety of the train was secured. Private Northrup, of Company G, was wounded in this affair.

They bivouacked in line at Crawfish Springs, and next day took an active part in the cavalry movement on the extreme right of our line during the battle of Chicamanga. In the afternoon they moved towards Chattanooga, followed by the enemy's cavalry, and camped in line nine miles from the town. On the 21st, they were engaged in skirmishing all day, holding their position until the morning of the 22d, when they were ordered to Chattanooga, and crossing the river, encamped on its north bank.

On the 26th of September, Major T. H. Mars resigned, and Captain Nathan Paine was appointed Major.

On the 1st of October, the effective force of the regiment encamped with the brigade at Jasper, Tenn. Next day, while on the march, it was ascertained that the rebel General Wheeler's command, had burned a Government train near Anderson's Gap. The First Wisconsin, then leading the brigade, was ordered forward. Moving with great rapidity the advanced guard of the regiment under command of Captain Smith, overtook the rebel rear guard and promptly attacked it. The enemy retreated steadily, skirmishing constantly with the advance guard of the regiment, which pursued him closely for about two miles, capturing eleven prisoners and liberating a number of our men, whom the enemy had previously captured. About a mile from the train, they encountered Martin's brigade, which the advance engaged and held until the arrival of the main body of the regiment, upon which four companies were dismounted and pushed forward as skirmishers, a mounted company protecting each flank, and the remainder of the regiment held within supporting distance. Advancing in this order, the skirmishers taking advantage of the nature of the ground, and moving rapidly from cover to cover, drove the enemy, who sustained a loss of twelve killed, and a considerable number wounded, a distance of two miles. Near this point, the enemy, in attempting to form, was thrown into confusion by the fire of our skirmishers, and at the proper moment, the reserve charged and scattered his wavering ranks in the wildest disorder. Thirty-seven of the enemy were killed and wounded, and forty-two made prisoners, the latter including a portion of the staff of General Wheeler, who himself harrowly escaped capture. In this affair, the regiment sustained a loss of Sergeant Forsyth, of Company D, severely, and three others slightly wounded. The retreating rebels were pursued two miles further when the regiment went into bivouac, remaining until the 4th of October, when they joined in pursuit of the rebel cavalry.

Marching by way of Dunlap across the Cumberland Mountains they reached McMinnville, from whence they proceeded by way of Rogersville and Athens, to Huntsville, Ala., and on the evening of the 13th, took part in the skirmish at Maysville, with a portion of the force of General Rhoddy, whom they pursued next day in the direction of Lamb's Ferry. On the 16th they marched to Salem, and next day encamped near Winchester, where they remained until the 20th of November, at which date they moved to Murfreesboro, Tenn. From this point, they moved by the way of Crab Orchard Gap into East Tennessee, and arrived on the 16th of December, at Knoxville. They continued their march by way of Strawberry Plains, to New Market, where slight skirmishing with the enemy took place on the 23d. During the night, Captain Harnden, with Company L, forced back the rebel pickets, and on the following day the regiment, under the command of Major Torrey, took part in a severe engagement in which the rebels were driven across Mossy Creek. They participated in several other engagements in this vicinity, successfully resisting the enemy's attempts to establish his line beyond the stream.

The casualities as reported, were:

KILLED.-Company H-Private Jasper Talbot. Company L-Private Chatham Crock-2. WOUNDED .- Company L-Private B. Shook and L. Stewart-2.

On the I4th of January, I864, they marched to and encamped near Dandridge, and were engaged next day with the enemy, losing one man wounded. In the action of the 17th, the enemy was at first forced back, but being assailed subsequently by greatly superior numbers, our regiment was compelled to retire. Captain La Grange, Company D, was mortally wounded.

The casualities as officially reported:

KILLED OR DIED OF WOUNDS .- Company G-Privates James Clark and J. C. Brail.

Company D—Captain W. W. La Grange, Company E—Private Arthur Morgan—4.
WOUNDED.—Company A—Corporal H. S. Chase and Private Charles R. Dodge, Company B-Sergeant N. Fields. Company C-Privates James Seaton and Edward Dwyer. Company F-Private Horace G. Stockton. Eli Braid, of Company L, died of wounds, January 17th, 1864. During the night they marched towards Knoxville, through which they passed on the I9th, encamping on the Sevierville road. On the 2d of January, Major Torrey, was sent to Nashville to procure horses, and Major N. Payne was left in command of the regiment. From the 21st of January, 1864, to March 12th, the regiment remained in East Tennessee, engaged in scouting duty, being stationed at different times at Sevierville, Marysville, Motley's Ford and Madisonville.

Lieutenant Colonel Pomeroy having resigned on the 11th of February, Major William Torrey was commissioned Lieutenant Colonel, on the 1st of March.

George E. Cardeman, of Company E, and Albert L. Hinman and William Slater, are reported as dying of wounds April 14th, 1864.

The regiment on the 12th of March, encamped at Cleveland, Tenn., where their numbers were augmented on the 26th, by the arrival of Lieutenant Colonel Torrey, with three hundred and fifty-four recruits, and fifty-six returned convalescents, increasing the aggregate strength of the regiment to one thousand and fifty-eight. Lieutenant Colonel Torrey took command of the regiment. While stationed here, details from the regiment were constantly employed in scouting parties, from which small numbers were frequently captured by the enemy. On the 11th of April, a picket post was surprised, and Lieutenant Caldwell, and nineteen men of Company L, were captured.

At the commencement of the Atlanta campaign, the regiment, commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Torrey, moving with the Second Brigade, Colonel La Grange commanding, of the First Cavalry Division, left Cleveland, Tenn., on the 3d of May, and skirmishing constantly on the advance, arrived on the 7th, at Varnell's Station, Ga., on the Cleveland and Dalton Railroad, ten miles from the latter place A. J. Keller, of Company E, was killed on the 3d of May. On the 9th of May, Colonel La Grange was ordered, with the Second Brigade, to develope the strength of the enemy on the railroad, three miles south of Varnell's. It was found that nearly the entire command of General Wheeler, supported by a division of infantry, occupied a strong position, and after a severe engagement, the brigade returned to Varnell's. In this affair, our regiment lost; Colonel La Grange, Captain G. O. Clinton and Lieutenant Sandon, captured by the enemy. The latter officer was also wounded. Major Paine was badly injured by a fall from his horse and Lieutenants Warren and Crocker were wounded.

The following partial list of casualties we find reported:

Jared L. Stevens, of Company L, died of wounds, July 12th, 1864.

Company A—Privates Nelson H. Brown, David N. Bell and Charles A. Ence. Company I—Private Henry C. Tarbox—4.

On the 17th, Lieutenant Colonel Torrey went to the rear sick, and Major Paine assumed Command of the regiment. On the 20th, Major Paine being wounded, and disabled by a fractured arm, was sent to the hospital, and Captain Harnden, of Company L, took command of the regiment. On the 21st, the regiment had a heavy skirmish with the enemy, losing nine men missing.

On the 26th of May, five companies, with a portion of the Fourth Indiana, charged a brigade of rebel cavalry at Burnt Hickory, capturing forty-seven prisoners. In this action Captain Harnden was badly wounded while leading the charge, and Captain Seaton then took command of the regiment.

The casualties were:

KILLED.— Company E—Private James Coddington —1.

WOUNDED.—Company L—Captain Harnden, commanding the regiment. Company A—Private Goodsill A. Foss. Company C—Private Bristol Farnsworth. Company E—Private James Johnson. Company I—Private Eli Horton—5.

On the 1st and 2d of June, they participated, without loss, in the demonstration on Johnston's right, and on the 4th, a portion of the regiment drove out a small body of rebels, and occupied Ackworth. With the brigade, they dislodged the rebel force holding Big Shanty, on the 6th, and subsequently advanced with the army to Lost Mountain. On the 1st of July, they marched from Lost Mountain to Howell's Ferry, on the Sweetwater. With the subsequent advance of the army, they crossed the Chattahoochie on the 22d. William Gerrets, of Company G, is reported killed on the 23d.

On the 27th, they re-crossed the river as part of General McCook's force for operations in rear of Atlanta. They again crossed the Chattahoochie next day, six miles below Campbelltown, where the regiment was detached from the main body and ordered to Campbelltown. Two miles east of the place, on the Fairbourn road, they attacked the advance of the rebel General Armstrong's division, and after a severe engagement, were compelled to retire with the loss of Major Paine, commanding regiment, killed, and Lieutenant Warren, wounded and captured, with nine men killed, wounded and missing. During the raid, the regiment lost forty men and officers, reported mostly as missing.

Major Paine was mortally wounded while making a charge. He fell from his horse saying, "I am shot—FORWARD." He fell into the hands of the enemy and was taken to a house near by where he died.

Major Paine was a brave and efficient officer, and a thorough gentleman.

Lieutenant Colonel William H. Torrey, who was then in command of the brigade, was killed on the 30th of July. To Colonel Torrey great credit is due for so disciplining the regiment as to make it one of the best cavalry regiments in the service. He was one of the bravest of officers, and his fall was deeply felt by the brigade which he commanded. In the regiment the deaths of Colonel Torrey and Major Paine, were greatly lamented.

Corporal J. T. Parsons and Private Ellis Brown, of Company C, were reported killed.

Acting as guard to the pontoon train and battery, they returned on the 31st, to Marietta, ten miles south of which place, they were afterwards stationed to cover the return of stragglers from General McCook's command, until the 7th of August, when they received marching orders. On the 12th, they arrived at Cartersville, where they remained, employed in forage and scout duty, until the 17th of October, when they again marched, arriving on the 19th, at Calhoun. While at Calhoun, the whole available force of the regiment was constantly engaged in scouting and foraging, losing a number of men by the guerillas. Here the escort of a wagon train, commanded by Major Harnden, whilst foraging on Pine Log Creek, was fiercely attacked by a band of guerillas, who were thoroughly routed, and the band broken up.

They left Calhoun on the 4th of November, when they were ordered to Louisville, Ky. Here the regiment lay in camp being reorganized, remounted and rearmed with improved weapons, until on the 4th of December, under the command of Major Harnden, they set out in the direction of Nashville, then besieged by the rebel forces under General Hood. Upon arriving at Bowling Green, on the 12th, the regiment accompanied the movement of the Second and Third Brigades, which were ordered to proceed by forced march to Hopkinsville, where a force of the enemy was reported 2,000 strong, consisting of cavalry and artillery, under command of General Lyon. They arrived in front of Hopkinsville on the 15th, and next morning drove the enemy from the town, capturing two pieces of artillery and fifteen prisoners. Our regiment lost five men wounded:

WOUNDED.—Company E—Privates William H. Minnick, Henry S. Birch and James Higgs. Company F—Private J. B. Ayres. Company K—Private Jervis B. Miller—5.

They then pursued the enemy to Elizabethtown, overtaking about 400 of General Lyon's force at that point. Colonel La Grange, with twenty men of the regiment, at once charged upon the rebels, capturing eleven prisoners, when the pursuit was abandoned.

The campaign being closed, the regiment finally went into winter quarters at Waterloo, Ala., where they remained until the 10th of March, 1865, when they moved across the Tennessee River to Chickasaw, and on the 22d of March, took up their line of march for the interior of Alabama, and crossing the Black Warrior River at Jasper, on the 31st, arrived at Montavallo.

On the 6th of January, 1865, Major Harnden was commissioned Lieutenant Colonel, and Captains Shipman and Howland, Majors, and on the 25th of February, Captain Newton Jones was commissioned Major.

On the 1st of April, the Second Brigade was detached from the main column, and ordered to move to the right. One battalion of the regiment, under command of Major Shipman, moved forward in advance to Centreville, where they put to flight a small force of the enemy, capturing fifteen prisoners. Upon being joined by the balance of the brigade, they crossed the Cahawba River at Centreville, and bivouacked for the night at Scottsville, having marched upwards of forty miles during the day. Early next morning they encountered Jackson's division of rebel cavalry, and after a severe engagement, lasting two hours, during which, Thomas H. Deming, of Company E, was killed, and two captured, they fell back towards Selma. They subsequently marched in various directions a distance of nearly two hundred miles, and on the 6th, arrived at Selma, where they rejoined the main column and remained two days. Crossing the Alabama, on the evening of the 9th of April, the brigade leading the marching column, had advanced about five miles from the river, when they met the enemy, and a running fight commenced in which the rebels were rapidly driven back, over a distance of about twenty-five miles, the brigade entering Lowndesboro at dusk. On the evening of the 12th, they occupied Montgomery, which was surrendered to the brigade, and continuing the march had advanced but two miles from the capitol, when they were fired upon. The First Wisconsin, and Seventh Kentucky, were then detached from the brigade and attacked the rebels, who had erected barricades about two miles apart. In the running fight which occurred as the rebels withdrew in their front from one barricade to another, the First Wisconsin was the only regiment actually engaged, and captured one hundred prisoners, sustaining a loss of one killed and five wounded.

The following casualties on the 14th, were reported by Lieut. Waterman:

KILLED.—Company C.—Sergeant Wm. A. Carson and Private George Condiman — 2.
WOUNDED.—Company A.—Private Andrew J. Pearson. Company E.—Sergeant Edward Culver. Company F.—Private Carl G. Metzner. Company L.—Second Lieutenant J. L. Ackley, First Sergeant Walter Carpenter, Corporal D. B. Turner and Wm. Taunton — 7.

Passing through Tuskegee and Auburn, they reached West Point, Ga., at noon on the 16th of April. The brigade immediately assaulted and captured Fort Tyler at this place, with its garrison of two hundred men. Our regiment, dismounted, carried one side of the fort. They were the first to cross the ditch, and for twenty minutes, lay on the embankment within ten feet of the enemy waiting for the other regiments assigned to the attack to attain position. At the appointed signal, they sprang up, when the garrison displayed the white flag. Loss, seven killed, including Lieutenant Vosburg, and fourteen wounded, including Lieutenant Colonel Harnden, slightly.

The following casualties at West Point on the 16th of April, were reported by Lieutenant Waterman, Adjutant of the regiment:

KILLED.—Company A.—First Lieutenant Sheldon E. Vosburg, Privates Washington Dolph, Godfrey Gurgis and Valentine Brant. Company H.—Privates Edgar Wyman and John Furguson — 6.

WOUNDED.—Field Officer—Lieutenant Colonel Henry Harnden. Company A—Sergeant Charles R. Dodge, Privates Jeremy H. Smith and Lewis Clark. Company B—Private I. B. Jackson. Company C—Corporal James T. Lyons, Privates William Bond, William Mehring and Herbert Fassbinder. Company D—Sergeant J. L. Fredericks and Private Edward Weldon. Company H—Sergeants Josich T. Foster and Azram Knapp. Company M—Sergeant N. L. White and Corporal William Grassman—15.

Sergeant Farrell, of Company K, was the first man to enter the fort. On the 17th, they crossed the Chattahoochie at West Point, and on the morning of the 21st, arrived at Macon, Ga., where they went into camp.

General Wilson, in his report, speaks highly of Lieutenant Colonel Harnden's management of the regiment, and recommended him for promotion.

The last active duty which this regiment was called upon to perform in the closing scenes of the rebellion, has already become historic by its association with the capture of Jefferson Davis, President of the so called Southern Confederacy.

In compliance with orders from the division commander, a detachment of 150 men of the First Wisconsin, under command of Lieutenant Colonel Harnden, left Macon on the evening of the 6th of May, and proceeding by way of Jeffersonville, in Twiggs County, where Lieutenant Hewitt, with thirty men, was detached to guard the cross roads, reached Dublin, in Lawrence County, fifty-five miles from Macon, on the evening of the following day, and encamped near the ferry across the Oconec River. At Dublin, Lieutenant Colonel Harnden ascertained that a train of light wagons and ambulances, with a number of led horses, had crossed the ferry during the day, taking the Jackson road, and subsequently learned that Davis and his wife were with the train. Leaving Lieutenant Lane, with forty-five men, to guard the ferry and patrol the roads, the balance of the detachment started in pursuit at daybreak on the 8th, and on reaching Turkey Creek Bridge, learned the exact course the train had taken, and pushed forward, under the direction of a guide, to the site of their camp of the previous night, between the forks of Alligator Creek. At this point they were but four hours behind the train, and after feeding the horses, the pursuit was resumed, across the main Alligator Creek, and through a swamp, to Gum Swamp Creek, in Pulaski County, where the trail became too indistinct to follow in the darkness, and the detachment bivouacked for the night. Next morning they were again in motion at three o'clock, and crossing Sugar and Cypress Creeks, proceeded to the Ocmulgee River, the bank of which they followed, in the dense swamp, to Brown's Ferry. Here an accident to the ferry boat, caused a delay of two hours in crossing the river, after which they pushed forward to Abbeville, which place the train had left at ten, in the morning, taking the road to Irwinville, in Irwin County. Promptly dispatching his command in that direction, Lieutenant Colonel Harnden went to meet Colonel Pritchard, of the Fourth Michigan Cavalry, who was in the vicinity, and whom he informed of the proximity of the train which he had pursued for such a distance, and that his command had gone forward in pursuit. Declining his offer of additional force, on account of the difficulty of procuring forage, Lieutenant Colonel Harnden left Colonel Pritchard at Abbeville, to which place he had been ordered, and moving rapidly forward, rejoined his command, which, about ten miles from the town, discovered the camping ground of the train, so recently left that the fires had not vet been extinguished. Colonel Harnden continued the pursuit through the pine woods, until nine in the evening, when, feeling certain that the train was close at hand, and that an attack in the darkness might afford an opportunity for some of the party to escape, he halted his command, with orders to be ready for an early start. At three in the morning of the 10th of May, he again gave the order to move forward. The command had proceeded about a mile, when the advance guard, commanded by Sergeant Hussey, was ordered to halt, by a party of men partly concealed behind trees. Supposing he had run upon the rebel pickets, Sergeant Hussey attempted to retreat, when a heavy volley was fired upon the party, wounding three ont of his seven men. Colonel Harnden then moved forward a squad of ten men, who were met with a similar volley, whereupon he deployed his whole force, and advanced rapidly, driving back the opposing force, one of whom was captured, proving to be a member of the Fourth Michigan Cavalry, under command of Colonel Pritchard. All firing of course ceased, and upon explanation, it was shown that Colonel Pritchard, after his interview with Lieutenant Colonel Harnden at Abbeville, had selected a number of his best mounted men, pushed rapidly forward on the run, and thence by way of House Creek, back to Irwinville, which he reached before the arrival of the train. He had then sent a small force, dismounted, around to the rear of the train, and as he moved upon it with his principal force from the Irwinville side, Lieutenant Colonel Harnden encountered his dismounted men, as above related. While this unfortunate collision was in progress, a portion of Colonel Pritchard's force captured the train. In this affair our regiment lost three severely, and several slightly wounded.

The reward offered for the capture of Jeff. Davis will probably be divided, by the War Department, between the forces of Lieutenant Colonel Harnden and Colonel Pritchard. Colonel Wilson, commander of the cavalry corps, in a letter, says:

Lieutenant Colonel Harnden is entitled to an equal share of the credit for the capture of Jeff. Davis, and is in no way responsible for the unfortunate collision which occurred.

Lieutenant Colonel Harnden then returned as rapidly as possible to Macon, where he reëntered camp on the 13th of May.

The regiment left Macon, Ga., on the 6th of May, and marching northward, by way of Forsyth, Dalton and Ringgold, arrived on the 2d of June, at Chattanooga, Tenn., from which they resumed the march on the 7th, encamping on the 15th at Edgefield, Tenn., opposite Nashville. At this place, the First Wisconsin Cavalry was mustered out of service on the 19th of July, and shortly afterwards, paid and disbanded.

After the regiment went to Tennessee, Colonel La Grange was almost constantly in command of a brigade, and distinguished himself in several brilliant actions, and gained the reputation of being one of the very best cavalry officers in the service, and was brevetted Brigadier General on the 13th of March, 1865.

Lieutenant Colonel Harnden was brevetted Colonel, and afterwards Brigadier General, and Major Shipman, Lieutenant Colonel and Colonel.

PART I

HISTORY OF THE SECOND DRAGOONS

The Second Dragoons are the oldest mounted regiment on continuous active service in the U.S. Army. From its formation in 1836 to fight in the Second Seminole War, to its numerous deployments to the Middle East, the Regiment has distinguished itself in major campaigns: the Indian Wars, the Mexican War, the Civil War, the Spanish-American War, both world wars, and the Persian Gulf War. Along the way members of the Regiment served gallantly in action, and 20 were awarded Medals of Honor.

THE BIRTH OF THE REGIMENT

To respond to the increasing trouble in Florida during the Second Seminole War, President Andrew Jackson issued an executive order 23 May 1836 forming the Second Regiment of Dragoons. Congress appropriated $300,000 for the Regiment, and the headquarters were established in June 1836 in Washington, DC.

Colonel David Emmanuel Twiggs was the First Colonel of the Regiment. Nicknamed "Old Davey" or the "Bengal Tiger," his troops claimed that he could "curse them right out of their boots." Lieutenant Colonel William Selby Harney was second in command, and later became the Second Colonel of the Regiment. His temper was as fiery as his flaming red hair, and although brutal on the field of battle, his imaginative and conscientious leadership helped to shape the character of the Regiment. Twiggs and Harney set the initial tone of the Regiment and fostered many of its enduring qualities.

Recruiting began immediately. Companies A and I were organized in the Fort Myer Virginia area. Company B obtained recruits in Virginia and Louisiana, Harney's home state, while Company C recruited from Tennessee. Companies B and C were not listed on the Regiment's active returns until April 1837. Company D was organized from a detachment of the First Dragoons in Florida and saw service there immediately. Companies E, F, G, and H recruited mostly from New York, and Company K was recruited from New Orleans and activated in March 1837.

In April 1837, the Regimental headquarters was moved to Jefferson Barracks, Missouri, where a "School of the Trooper" was organized for the remaining companies, numbering over 400 new recruits. The new troopers were excited to get their training under way. As fast as the "green" horses were received they were introduced to their new riders, equally "green" at horsemanship. It was said that their "ambitious mounting in hot haste" frequently resulted in their immediate dismounting. Veterans noted that their "quickness of time and variety of motions" were unparalleled in mounted tactics.

THE SECOND SEMINOLE WAR

Even before the arrival of the Regiment for its first assignment, the men who became Company D had their first encounter near Micanopy, Florida. They drew "first blood" as members of the Regiment in July 1836 in a spirited engagement at Welika Pond, near Fort Defiance, Florida, on 10 June 1836.

In December 1836, the first four companies sailed from New York to Charleston, South Carolina, for immediate service in Florida. Company I joined them in Charleston, and Harney took command. The Regiment arrived at the mouth of the St. John's River, Florida, in January 1837 and marched to Fort Mellon on Lake Munroe, arriving on 6 February. This post fell under attack only two days later, embroiling the companies almost immediately in the war.

On 9 September 1837, three companies of the Second Dragoons and two of Florida volunteers surrounded an Indian village. At first light, the force captured the village, including the important chief, King Phillip.

This action represented a shift in tactics. Garrisons had previously waited in forts and responded when attacked, only to find that the Seminoles had melted back into the Florida Everglades. Though some experts doubted the wisdom of employing mounted troops in that terrain, the Second Dragoons pioneered the practice of taking the battle to the enemy. The Indians responded by signing what would be a short-lived peace treaty.

Chiefs Coacoochee and Osceola, however, did not sign the document and persuaded the rest of the members to return to the Everglades and continue the fight. This pattern of warfare would be repeated so often that a poet wrote:

"And yet 'tis not an endless war, as facts will plainly show, Having been ended forty times In twenty months or so."

Harney would go to any length to defeat the enemy. In March 1838, the Regiment took delivery from Samuel Colt of 50 Patterson Patent revolving carbines. Legend has it that Harney purchased these weapons with his own money. Fifty selected troopers were equipped with this new carbine and formed a Regimental corps of sharpshooters. Some say that the sharpshooters were so successful that Harney bought 50 more carbines in 1839. Thus, the Regiment earned its reputation both for daring new tactics and the use of new technology.

The Regiment earned one red and black battle streamer for its participation in the Seminole War.

FORT JESSUP, LOUISIANA

As the war with the Seminoles began to wind down, the Regiment was repositioned in Louisiana, which formed part of the eastern frontier of the Louisiana Purchase. This was the Regiment's first posting in the state of Louisiana. In October 1842, Companies A, D, E, F, and G were ordered to move to Fort Jessup, Louisiana, and Fort Towson, Arkansas. The remaining companies worked to improve their positions and to scout for the last band of hostile Indians in Florida. Upon completion of their tasks in Florida, these companies went to Louisiana, where the entire Regiment assembled. Headquarters were at Fort Jessup and additional postings were to the Arkansas Territory and Baton Rouge, Louisiana.

In August 1842 Congress passed a resolution to dismount the Regiment as a cost-saving measure, and it was reconstituted as a Regiment of Riflemen. The Secretary of War noted in his report of 1842 that dismounting the Regiment saved very little money. It was also pointed out that the distances along the frontier and the mounted Indian tribes of the area necessitated more mounted formations. In March of 1843 the Regiment was re-mounted and again designated as the Second Dragoons.

Fort Jessup was home to the Dragoons for four years. They patrolled the border between the United States and the Republic of Texas while providing security along the famous El Camino Real, which took travelers from Natchitoches, Louisiana, to Nacogdoches, Texas. Life for the Regiment at Fort Jessup was a nice change from the deprivations of service in Florida. Twiggs established a steam-powered sawmill at the fort to begin an extensive building program. (Visitors to the historic site of Fort Jessup, six miles east of Many, Louisiana, can see some of the original buildings of this frontier post.)

Following a period of temporary duty in Europe, one Captain William J. Hardee briefly armed several of the Dragoon's companies with lances. An Inspector General's report said at the time that the unit was the "best drilled" outfit in the entire Army.

In 1836 the Republic of Texas was established after fighting for its independence from Mexico. For the next decade, Mexico refused to recognize Texas's independence and made sporadic attempts to recover its lost province. The country along the border was in constant turmoil as a result of these extremely ruthless raids. On March 1,1845, Congress resolved to admit Texas into the Union. The Mexican Government promptly broke off diplomatic relations with Washington.

President James K. Polk continued to hope that the situation could reach a negotiated settlement. Not only did he wish to resolve the issue of the annexation of Texas, but he also wished to purchase additional Mexican territory extending all the way to the Pacific Ocean. Negotiations were further complicated by a long unresolved dispute regarding the southern border of Texas. Spain and Mexico maintained that the southern boundary was the Neuces River, while the Texas and the United States claimed that the Rio Grande River was the international border. In anticipation of hostilities, Brevet Brigadier General Zachary Taylor assembled an "Army of Observation" at Fort Jessup.

WAR WITH MEXICO

In July of 1845, General Taylor's force began moving to Texas. Most of his force embarked from New Orleans bound for Corpus Christi, Texas. The Second Dragoons were the exception, choosing to proceed over land from Fort Jessup to Corpus Christi. They made the 501-mile march in 32 days, and reported to General Taylor in fine shape, contrary to some predictions from others outside the command. In March of 1846 General Taylor was ordered to move his force to the Rio Grande River in order to repel any invasion. General Taylor's force departed Corpus Christi to establish a base of operations at Point Isabel. The vanguard of his force, led by a squadron from the Second Dragoons and Major Ringold's Flying Artillery, subsequently moved to establish Fort Texas along the Rio Grande River. This position was directly across from the Mexican city of Matamoras, near what is now Brownsville, Texas.

The Dragoons began an aggressive schedule of mounted patrols along the Rio Grande. Acting as the eyes and ears for General Taylor and maintaining security along the flanks, the Regiment became well acquainted with the area and some of the local ranchers. On 25 April 1846 General Taylor received word that the Mexican Army was crossing the river above and below his position. Two companies of Dragoons moved to the lower crossing while Companies C and F went to reconnoiter the upper crossing. The next day one of the Company's native guides returned to camp claiming that the units had been attacked by a large force of Mexicans near La Rosia and that "all had been either cut to pieces or captured." The two companies of Dragoons, numbering 60 men, were surrounded and ambushed by over 500 Mexican cavalry. They sustained nine dead and two wounded. Thornton was pinned to the ground when his horse was shot dead in mid-air as he cleared an eight-foot wall of chaparral in an attempt to charge through the enemy. The entire command, now under Captain William Hardee, was captured and taken to Matamoras. This battle gave President Polk the excuse he needed to invade Mexico.

During a counter-attack at Palo Alto on 8 May 1846, the Regiment was largely responsible for forcing the enemy to the east and exposing its left flank. The next day at Resaca de la Palma, General Taylor ordered Captain Charles A. May to silence a battery of Mexican cannons that had been blocking the Matamoras Road. May said, "I'm going to charge them," as he led his squadron (Companies D and E) through the American infantry lines and into the fire from the Mexican artillery. May overwhelmed the battery and captured a Mexican general. May's order of the day, "Remember your Regiment and follow your officers," has become the Regiment's motto

Another hero of the Mexican war was Sergeant Jack Miller, whose small patrol was ambushed by a force five times its number near Monclova in November 1847. The Dragoons were going for their carbines when Miller shouted: "No firing, men! If 20 Dragoons can't whip 100 Mexicans with the saber, I'll join the Doughboys and cart a fence rail all my life." The Dragoons charged and killed six Mexicans, wounded thirteen, and captured seventy. Casualties in Miller's unit were limited to only one man wounded and three mounts lightly scratched.

On 29 June 1846, Colonel Twiggs, the First Colonel of the Regiment, recently promoted to Brigadier General after ten years in command, passed command of the Regiment to his successor, Colonel Harney. Harney remained in command for the duration of the Mexican War. Congress later awarded Twiggs a sword with a jeweled hilt and a gold scabbard as a tribute to his gallantry at Monterey. The Regiment's service proved invaluable in every major campaign of the war, and it is one of perhaps two regiments in the Army to have had elements participate in every battle. The Regiment added 14 green and gray campaign streamers to the Regimental standard during the war with Mexico.

THE NATION EXPANDS WEST

After the Mexican war, the Regiment moved west to secure the country's newly acquired territories for the influx of settlers. In June of 1849 troopers from Company F under the command of Major Ripley Arnold established an encampment along the banks of the Trinity River in Texas, which they named Fort Worth in honor of General William J. Worth, whom the Regiment had served with during the final years of the Seminole War. This area is now known as "the fort that became a city," Dallas/Fort Worth.

The Regiment spent the pre-Civil War period fighting Indians and securing the routes that brought settlers into the new territories of the United States. In 1854, the Second Dragoons took part in a campaign against the Sioux Indians and soundly defeated a sizable Brule Sioux force near Ash Hollow, Nebraska, without incurring a single loss. This action forced the Sioux to sign a peace treaty.

In late 1857, in response to reports of harassment and abuse of Federal officials from Mormon settlers in Utah, a battalion formed from the Regiment was sent to put down Mormon resistance to U.S. authority as part of a 2,500 man expeditionary force. Expecting a confrontation, the Mormon leader and Utah governor, Brigham Young, mobilized the Utah militia, but agreed to terms just before the expeditionary force reached the state. This long and arduous winter march is immortalized in the Don Stiver print, "Never a Complaint."

On 14 June 1858, Harney was promoted to Brigadier General and Philip St. George Cooke was appointed the Third Colonel of the Regiment. During this time Colonel Cooke published the definitive manual on cavalry tactics, which was used by both sides in the Civil War.

In July 1860, the President of the United States ordered Harney to St. Louis to take command of the Department of the West. Once there, however, the combination of the onslaught of political events and his own political naiveté ruined him. Although he was a brilliant cavalryman, Harney, as a political neophyte, could not negotiate the tangle of political affairs in Missouri. Suspected of Southern sympathies by the powerful Blair-Benton faction in Missouri, local politicians demanded his removal, and President Lincoln relieved him of his command in May 1861. On 1 August 1863, Harney was placed on the retired list. He was promoted to brevet Major General on 13 March 1865 in recognition of his long and faithful service. President Lincoln later admitted that Harney's removal was one of the biggest mistakes of his administration. Harney went on to serve several Indian commissioners and became known as "the nation's greatest Indian expert." He died in Orlando, Florida, on 9 May 1889. In his honor, the Sioux gave him a title he would have cherished, "Man-Who-Always-Kept-His-Word." A single thread runs through all that he did and tried to do – a fierce desire to serve. His epitaph in Arlington Cemetery captures his humility and dedication to the Regiment. It reads simply, "Harney, Second Dragoons." In 1985 Fort Leavenworth named its new gymnasium after this distinguished cavalryman.

At the opening of the Civil War, now Brevet Major General Twiggs surrendered all Union forces and stores in Texas to Confederate General Ben McCulloch. Twiggs was promptly dismissed from Federal service, and on 22 May 1861 received an appointment as a Major General in the Confederate Army. At that time, he was the senior general officer in the Confederate service, but the former Dragoon was too old to take the field.

Both the Union and Confederacy thought that Colonel Cooke would support the Southern cause. His son, John R. Cooke, became surgeon general of the Confederate Army and the husband of his favorite daughter was no less than J.E.B. Stuart. Some even said that he "may pull a Twiggs," referring to the surrender of the Union forces. Still, his loyalty to the Constitution remained steadfast. In November 1861 he was appointed Brigadier General and placed in command of a cavalry brigade in Washington. During the Peninsula Campaign, he commanded the cavalry reserve, a division consisting of two brigades.

THE CIVIL WAR YEARS

In 1861 the Second Dragoons were recalled to the east to fight in the Civil War. Because of the continuous turmoil on the plains, the Regiment was full of combat veterans. Thomas John Wood was appointed as the Fourth Colonel of the Regiment, and was almost immediately promoted to Brevet Brigadier General and placed in charge of a Brigade of Volunteers. Wood fought the entire war with the Army of Tennessee, seeing action at Chickamauga and Missionary Ridge outside of Chattanooga. Many illustrious company grade officers commanded the Regiment, most notably Captains Wesley Merritt and Theophilus Rodenbough.

The Dragoons' designation was changed to Second United States Calvary Regiment on 3 August 1861. Company C was the last unit to fight as Dragoons during the Battle of Wilson's Creek, Missouri. The Second Calvary fought as part of the First Calvary Division of the Army of the Potomac and participated in numerous campaigns in Virginia and the battles of Antietam, Chancellorsville, Fredericksburg, Gettysburg, Manassas, Spotsylvania, and Cold Harbor.

During the battle of Fredericksburg, Sergeant Martin Hagan and a handful of troopers held off a Confederate cavalry brigade belonging to J.E.B. Stuart's corps, allowing the Union Army to withdraw across the river. Hagan accomplished this mission without the loss of a single man, horse, or major item of equipment, and for his gallant action he was awarded the first Medal of Honor of the Second Dragoons. Sgt Hagen is not listed as a recipient of the Medal of Honor by any of the agencies tasked to track these things. The Regiment has several sources that indicate that he was the Regiment's first recipient. The Regimental Museum staff has asked the National Medal of Honor Historical Society to clarify this.
